

Why Should You Give?

The overriding rationale for the establishment of this Foundation is to enhance the image of osteopathic internal medicine. The ACOI leaders who created the Legacy Club believe that osteopathic internists offer the finest and most comprehensive medical care available anywhere in the world. Yet, in much of the United States, our quality is not widely known.

The ACOI is a growing and successful organization, but it cannot undertake a project of this scope through general revenues alone. The funds contributed to the Legacy Club will be used to raise our national prominence on several levels. It is our goal:

To continue to convince the best and brightest graduates to select osteopathic internal medicine as a career. We envision the expansion of the Visiting Professor program to expose every osteopathic student to successful DO-internist role models.

To increase the amount of support available for students to attend the annual convention and scientific sessions so they can experience our premier meeting firsthand.

To provide scholarships to students who successfully complete osteopathic internal medicine residency programs in order to help with their staggering student loan debt.

To provide meaningful practice management assistance to our young members as they begin their careers as osteopathic internists.

Finally, we treasure our 60 plus year history and the contributions of our long-time members. It is our hope to compile and publish a definitive history of the ACOI for future generations.

Many of our members have had successful careers beyond their dreams. They have looked for a way to give back. If this describes you, the Legacy Club offers an opportunity to make a difference for the future of osteopathic internal medicine.

Yes, I would like to make a difference by contributing to the ACOI Legacy Fund.
