From President Greco

Giving Thanks and Giving Back

Holiday greetings from all of us at the ACOI. I hope this message finds you and your loved ones in good health and with a joyful spirit.

While I am personally thankful for many things, the bond we share through our profession reminds me to be thankful for the many teachers and mentors that have contributed to my education over the years; especially those who have shared their enthusiasm for the practice of medicine and the great impact our charitable service can have on our fellow man. How I hope our residents and students still hear these positive voices over the negative banter that can poison the doctors' lounge these days.

Ours is a profession that provides the challenge of life-long learning in a dynamic, science-driven field. In return, we can experience the personal satisfaction of imparting the benefits of that science to the individuals who need it most, our patients. I greatly appreciate those patients who have allowed me the opportunity to witness the many aspects of the human experience through their lives as I care for them. My patients have shown me

Inpatient Clinical Challenges Registration Open

Registration is open for the ACOI’s CME program for hospitalists and others: Clinical Challenges in Inpatient Care, which will take place March 27-30 at the Westin Savannah Harbor Golf Resort and Spa in Savannah, GA.

The program will provide up to 24 AOA 1A CME credits in internal medicine in a beautiful Lowcountry setting. In addition, the program meets the American Osteopathic Board of Internal Medicine’s (AOBIM) requirement for a board review course for those who plan to sit for the new focused hospital medicine recertification credential. Due to space limitations at the hotel, registration for this meeting is strictly limited to the first 165 registrants.

Frederick A. Schaller, DO and Scott L. Girard, DO are co-chairing the program. They have included sessions on sepsis guidelines, emerging infections, medical management in acute MI, oncologic emergencies, transitioning care, perioperative management and more.

The first examination for Osteopathic Continuous Certification (recertification) for Focused Practice in Hospital Medicine will be offered on May 8, 2014. The examination will be administered by PearsonVUE at 200 sites nationwide and will be 3.5 hours in length. Eligibility requirements and application packets are available by emailing admin@aobim.org. All applicants must be certified in internal medicine by the AOBIM and meet specific requirements of a hospital-based practice. The application deadline is March 1, 2014.

The Westin Savannah Harbor Resort is located in the Savannah River District, in the South Carolina Lowcountry—home to beautiful marshlands, wild coasts and many bird species. It has been newly renovated and a special rate of $179 per night has been arranged for course participants.

For further information regarding the Clinical Challenges program, including meeting and hotel registration materials, visit www.acoi.org.

Leadership Course Adds Hospitalist/Subspecialist Focus

When the joint ACOI-UTD Healthcare Leadership & Management program for College members was introduced at the 2012 annual meeting, care was taken to address potential concerns that the course would be relevant for hospitalists and subspecialists, as well as ambulatory internists. As a result, the class that began in January, 2013 and concluded the course with the October annual meeting capstone experience included about one-third who were hospitalists or specialty phythat individuals, families and communities don’t need an earthquake, hurricane, or other natural disaster to be worthy of the donation of our Time, Talent and Treasure.

In the spirit of charitable giving and with the support of the Board of Directors, I am promoting that the ACOI identify worthy causes in the communities that host our conferences and meetings. We will offer our members the opportunity to contribute or personally participate in those efforts during our educational events.

I challenge everyone to take a look around your own community, identify those worthy charitable efforts and give your support. There are many stockings to be filled now and throughout the year.

Please feel free to contact me about any issue of interest.
Physician Payment Reform Advances in the House and Senate

With a nearly 24 percent reduction in physician payment under the Medicare program slated for January 1, Congress continues to advance measures aimed at staving off the cut and permanently repealing the flawed Sustainable Growth Rate (SGR) formula.

Recognizing the importance of finding a permanent solution, the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee developed a bipartisan package that would permanently repeal the SGR and establish a value-based performance program that consolidates and enhances existing incentive programs. It would also incentivize the development of, and participation in, alternative payment models. Following consideration of the legislation, the Ways and Means and Finance Committees approved the legislation with some variations. It is widely understood that final approval of a legislative package repealing the SGR will require that its cost is offset. To date, offsets have not been identified. (See related article below.)

While significant advances have been made in moving toward the enactment of legislation to permanently repeal the SGR, the reality is that a nearly 24 percent reduction will take effect on January 1 absent congressional action. As this issue goes to press, the House and Senate are working to approve a federal budget agreement (H. J. Res. 59). Included in the resolution working its way through Congress is a three-month extension to the current Medicare physician payment rate. The short timeframe for the extension is intended to ensure that Congress quickly completes the work advanced in the House and Senate committees.

The ACOI is continuing to closely monitor this rapidly changing situation. Additional information will be provided as it becomes available.

CMS Releases Final Physician Payment Rule

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) announced payment and policy changes under the Medicare Physician Fee Schedule on November 27. CMS estimates that total payments made under the fee schedule in 2014 will be approximately $85 billion.

The final rule would cut physician reimbursement by about 24 percent for physicians providing Medicare services on or after January 1. In addition to changes in the SGR, the final rule modifies the Physician Quality Reporting System (PQRS) by adding 57 new measures and two measure groups. The rule also provides for the following: changes the Physician Compare Tool; implements the value-based payment modifier required under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA); and sets the stage for Medicare to pay for complex chronic-care management services that occur without a face-to-face visit beginning in 2015, among other things. The complete rule is available at http://www.ofr.gov/OFRUpload/OFRData/2013-28696_PI.pdf.

New CBO Report Updates Cost to Reform Physician Reimbursement Rate

The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office (CBO) recently released a revised cost estimate to reform physician reimbursement under the Medicare program. Specifically, the CBO estimates that repealing the Medicare physician payment formula known as the Sustainable Growth Rate (SGR) will now cost $116.5 billion over ten years. The new estimate is lower than its previous estimate of $139.1 billion and is less than half what CBO estimated as recently as 2012. In addition, the CBO reduced its cost estimate of the “Medicare Patient Access and Quality Improvement Act” (H.R. 2810), as approved by the House Committee on Energy and Commerce. It has reduced the estimate of H.R. 2810 from $175.5 billion down to $153.2 billion. The reduced estimates come at a crucial time in Congress’ efforts to address the perennial reductions that confront physicians and threaten to impact access to care.

Supreme Court Set to Hear Additional ACA Challenge

The US Supreme Court announced that it will consider two cases challenging the “women’s preventive services” mandate contained in the ACA. The Court has allotted one hour for oral argument to examine whether for-profit secular corporations can be required to provide coverage for contraceptive services as provided for in the ACA. The Court granted review of Conestoga Wood Specialties Corp. v. Secretary of the United States Department of Health and Human Services and Hobby Lobby Stores, Inc. v. Sebelius. Both private corporations argue that the requirement to provide coverage for contraceptive services or face a fine is a violation of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA). Conestoga Wood Specialties is also arguing that the requirement is a violation of the Free-Exercise Clause of the Constitution. The two cases have been consolidated into one and will be presented to the Court early next year with a ruling most likely handed down by July 2014.

sicians. Based on their experiences and feedback, additional steps are planned for the 2014 course to make it even more meaningful for all participants.

As part of the program assessment, participants were asked to comment on all aspects of the course. They reported that content that addressed inter-personal and communication skills, the complementary contributions of leaders, managers and followers to organizational success, and the core leadership skills related to managing change, dealing constructively with conflict, and acquiring basic negotiation skills, were valuable whether a participant was a primary care or specialty physician. Hospitalist and specialty physician participants also stated they benefited from the ambulatory emphasis of certain units, either because it provided them with approaches for collaborating more effectively with primary care physicians, or included knowledge relevant and transferable to their specialty practices.

One of the highlights of the course was an opportunity for participants to utilize their newly-acquired knowledge and insights and address realistic practice-oriented scenarios associated with a new chapter of the case study that accompanied each unit. The Bailey Clinic case study followed Dr. Bailey and his colleagues on a transformative journey from traditional adult primary care practice to a Patient Centered Medical Home model employing a multi-disciplinary team to deliver patient-centered care.

Included among the tasks and challenges students addressed were how to plan a critical conversation with an uncooperative physician colleague; tactics for recruiting and aligning clinic physicians as active participants in the transformation; negotiating with a commercial insurance company for PCMH support and a fee schedule applicable to the new delivery model; risk stratifying a patient panel; selecting metrics for a balanced clinic scorecard relevant to the patient populations in the practice; and restructuring the clinic staff, their roles and responsibilities to provide effective, efficient patient-centered care.

Based on the effectiveness of the case study format to engage participants, a second case study – built around challenges hospitalists face in the inpatient setting – will be available to participants who enroll in the class scheduled to begin in January 2014. Scenarios will follow a pattern similar to the Bailey Clinic case study exercises, but will focus on aspects unique to hospitalists, including difficult conversations with colleagues or staff; communicating with patients and families; hospital contract negotiations; communicating and working effectively with primary care and specialty physicians and emergency department colleagues; selecting a balanced performance scorecard relevant to the patient populations in the practice; and restructuring the clinic staff, their roles and responsibilities to provide effective, efficient patient-centered care.

College members who enroll in the next class will select either the ambulatory or the inpatient case study when the course commences and be responsible for continued contributions to this choice throughout the course. Faculty will provide commentary on each participant’s threaded discussion contribution and participants will be able to read and comment on the contributions of colleagues who choose the same case study; thereby enhancing learning through shared exchanges.

It is hoped that this alternative case study will encourage hospitalist and specialist participation and strengthen College members’ leadership and management competency profiles. For additional information about the leadership course, please visit www.acoi.org, or contact Tim McNichol, JD (tmcnichol@acoi.org).

Estate Planning Session
Stresses Early Preparation

By Ann Suydam, CFRE
Director of Development

Attendees at the 2013 ACOI Annual Convention participated in a popular session entitled, “Avoiding the Pitfalls of Estate Planning.” Joel Loquvam, a former member of the Board of Governors of the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys, was the featured speaker. Mr. Loquvam presented practical ideas on how to get started in planning your estate and in finding trusted legal counsel to help you through the process.

A key message of the presentation encouraged participants to begin the process early because “historically, wealth is squandered within three generations,” Mr. Loquvam said. “By selecting careful planning options, families are able to protect their heirs and possibly future generations.” Mr. Loquvam advised participants that early planning also will ensure that you are in control of the distribution of your assets, not the courts or the IRS.

Estate planning may also include leaving a legacy to worthy not-for-profit organizations or institutions, and legacy giving is a wise investment for securing an organization’s future. It enables a non-profit, such as ACOI, to plan long-term for strategic activities such as developing new research opportunities, creating more educational and training programs and expanding outreach programs. You do not need great personal wealth to make a difference. With good financial management, even the smallest contribution will grow significantly over the years.

For more information on estate planning or referrals through the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys, please contact ACOI at ann@acoi.org.

Review Course Provides Essential Exam Preparation

Registration is open for the 2014 ACOI Internal Medicine Board Review Course, which will take place March 26-30 at the Westin Savannah Harbor Golf Resort and Spa, Savannah, GA. The course is a comprehensive review of general medicine and each of the subspecialties. It is an excellent way for practicing physicians to update their medical knowledge, as well as an essential part of the preparation process for the certifying and recertifying examinations in internal medicine. Special emphasis is placed on recent advances in various subspecialty areas and on clinical skills management as they pertain to clinical practice and the examinations. Attendance at the review course meets the requirement that osteopathic internal medicine residents must attend one ACOI education program during the course of their training.

Guest rooms are available at the Westin Resort for $179 a night, plus taxes. Registration materials are available on www.acoi.org, or by calling 1-800-327-5183.

ACOI Calls on Congress to Support GME Funding
The ACOI recently joined with the Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC) and others to call on Congress to protect funding for Graduate Medical Education (GME) during budget negotiations. With a projected shortage of 91,500 doctors by 2020 and an estimated 10,000 new Medicare beneficiaries each day, the ACOI and others believe it is imperative that Congress act to protect and expand graduate medical education training opportunities.

According to the letter sent by the ACOI and others on November 20, “Any reduction in Medicare support for GME would dramatically and rapidly increase shortages of primary care and specialist physicians that seniors (and others) rely upon. The nation must provide the necessary support to train more physicians or it will be increasingly difficult for patients to find the doctors they need.” The letter also states, “Medicare GME cuts that jeopardize physician training and limit critical services are a step in the wrong direction.” The ACOI will continue to work to protect and expand training opportunities in graduate medical education.

Meaningful-Use Deadline Pushed Back
The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) proposed a one-year delay for providers to implement Stage 2 of its Medicare and Medicaid “meaningful use” electronic health record incentive programs. Stage 2 participation was already delayed once. As a result of the new proposed timeline, Stage 2 will be extended through 2016 Stage 3 will begin in 2017 for those who have successfully completed at least two years under Stage 2. Additional information is available at http://www.cms.gov/eHealth/ListServ_Stage-3Implementation.html.

There are only five known copies of the Gettysburg Address in Lincoln’s handwriting. Each copy is named after the first person to receive them and differs slightly. Only one copy is signed and dated, the “Bliss Copy,” named after Colonel Alexander Bliss. With competing copies and no recordings or transcripts, we will never know the exact words uttered by Lincoln on the edge the battlefield that witnessed over 51,000 casualties over three days in July 1863.

New ACOI Webinar Provides 1-A Credit

The ACOI has been approved to participate in an AOA pilot program to offer 1A CME credit for an internet continuing education program.

Unlike most such programs, live participation is not required.

The webinar will feature a presentation by noted cardiologist Robert Chilton, DO, FACOI, on New NIH Guidelines on Atherosclerosis. Participants will complete brief pre-and post-test questions in order to receive credit. Dr. Chilton will be available to respond to questions electronically within 48 hours of submission.

The webinar will be available on www.acoi.org beginning in January at a cost of $25 for ACOI members. Access to the program will be available through February.
