

From President Good Congressional Meetings Are Productive

The legislative process is long and arduous, and to most physicians appears to be full of political overtones and wasted time. There are many emotions and partial truths that influence enacted laws and regulations. This was certainly evident during my recent trip to Washington, DC, where Tim McNichol and I spent time advocating on behalf of ACOI members across the country.

My specific recommendations were to keep healthcare policies as simple as possible and to prevent the creation of additional barriers for physicians to provide care for their patients. In my meetings, I pointed out that healthcare access has been decreasing as a result of policies that are very structured and require physicians to spend additional time with documentation that may not benefit overall patient care.

It is important that the healthcare system continue to provide access to care for those who need it when they need it most. While the Affordable Care Act is intended to improve access to affordable, quality care, it may actually decrease the ability of physicians to see additional patients due to increased regulatory requirements. Future meaningful use criteria are an additional example of increased stress in providing healthcare services.

There is consensus in Washington that the current Medicare Sustainable

ACOI President Advocates On Behalf of Profession

ACOI President Robert G. Good, DO, FACOI, recently visited Washington, DC to meet with congressional leaders. During two days of meetings with key congressional staff and others, Dr. Good spoke on the importance of advancing meaningful reform for Medicare physician reimbursement; expanding graduate medical education; increasing access to affordable quality care; and reducing regulatory burdens. Concern was expressed by Dr. Good that the ever-increasing regulatory requirements are counter-productive and negatively impact quality, efficiency and access to care by diverting limited resources. Dr. Good emphasized the importance of ensuring that healthcare reform efforts are not overly complicated, thus predisposing them to failure. In addition, he informed those with whom he met that the ACOI stands ready to assist congressional efforts to ensure that patients have access to high quality care.

Growth Rate (SGR) calculations are unsustainable. Clearly, Congress does not want to continue to deal with reimbursement fixes on an annual basis. Healthcare policy makers within the House Ways and Means, Energy and Commerce and Senate Finance Committees, however, appear to support quality and pay-for-performance measures that improve patient safety and outcomes. The senior legislative staff of these powerful committees requested additional input from the ACOI.

I am concerned that policymakers have lost sight of the vital role small physician practices play in the healthcare delivery system. We attempted to promote consideration for the many primary care and specialty physicians who are not employed by larger entities, and who traditionally have been the mainstay of healthcare. For example, while physicians and groups may have been provided economic incentives to initiate electronic medical records, no consideration seems to have been given to the ongoing cost to maintain and develop software programming in a small practice setting. Many physicians are working as hard as they can to see patients. They do not have the time or expertise to deal with a very complex healthcare environment that is asking a lot of the physician and healthcare system.

There is also a basic agreement on the need for change in the funding of graduate medical education. Due to budgetary restrictions, it appears unlikely that significant changes will occur in this Congress to increase funding for residency training.

We will continue to provide specific comments to Congress. It appears that we provided some unique insights to the representatives we met with. I believe that the ACOI needs to continue its efforts to develop graduate medical education programs that may need to be funded by a different paradigm. While Medicare and Medicaid recipients are a significant proportion of the healthcare dollar in the hospital setting, private insurers have responsibilities, as well.

Efforts are well underway to replace the SGR formula. It appears, however, that quality indicators and outcome analysis will be part of the calculated compensation for care. Policymakers continue to believe the Institute of Medicine's decade-old data on safety issues and mortality/morbidity within our current system. They are seeking to tie compensation to quality. It is my belief that their current efforts are simply too complicated and that the complexity will result in additional cost and administrative burdens without the benefit that are sought.

Some type of tort reform also is needed to reduce overutilization. This does not appear to be something that the people we met with are willing to pursue. There is a naïve concept that improving documentation of standards to reduce medical liability overutilization is the answer. While this may be helpful, it is evident that there is not a good concept of how the medical liability system actually works.

There is a need for us to change and to improve health care access in a country with a decreasing supply of primary care physicians and an aging population. The skills of the ACOI-developed Phoenix Physician will be increasingly important, and we emphasized that value with the congressional leaders we met with.

As we continue the process of providing input into policy development efforts in Washington, DC, we welcome specific and detailed comments from our membership. We have the ear of influential members of Congress and leadership within powerful congressional committees. Now is the time to be involved!

ACOI President Advocates on Behalf of Profession

Efforts to Advance Medicare Physician Reimbursement Reform Continue

Congressional committees of jurisdiction in both the House and Senate are continuing to work to develop legislation to reform the current Medicare physician payment formula. The House Energy and Commerce Committee released draft legislation that is under review by the ACOI and others. A hearing by the Committee has been scheduled and is expected to explore the barriers and opportunities existing in the current healthcare environment to achieve a long-term solution to this ongoing problem. Central to the policy proposals advanced in Congress thus far is the belief that there is a need to expand “quality reporting” mechanisms to control costs and improve patient care.

The ACOI has conducted an initial review of the draft legislation produced by the Energy and Commerce Committee, as well as policy statements put out by other committees. Further review is underway. Additional information will be provided as it becomes available.

Tavener Confirmed as Head of CMS

Marilyn Tavener was confirmed by the Senate to lead the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) on May 15. Her nomination was approved by a vote of 91-7. Tavener is the first confirmed CMS administrator since Mark McClellan held the position in 2004 through 2005 under President George W. Bush. The nomination was stalled twice before clearing the Senate with strong bipartisan support. In addition to overseeing the Medicare and Medicaid programs, Administrator Tavener is also responsible for implementing significant parts of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA, Pub. L. 111-152). She is the first democratic nominee approved in over 15 years. Prior to her confirmation, Tavener served as Acting Administrator for more than a year.

House Votes to Repeal the ACA

The House considered and approved H.R. 45 by a vote of 229-195 on May 16. The bill, which was approved along party lines, would repeal the ACA in its entirety. It is the 37th vote by the House to either fully or partially repeal the ACA. Prior to its approval, the Administration released a statement of administrative policy indicating that President Obama would veto the legislation should it make it to his desk. Due to the current composition of the Senate, it is unlikely that the similar legislation will be considered and advanced beyond the House.

Medicare Trustee Report Extends Medicare Solvency

According to a report released on May 31, the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund will remain solvent through 2026. This represents an additional two years over last year’s report. The report entitled, “2013 Annual Report of the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance and Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund,” suggests caution due to the many uncertainties that remain. For instance, the report assumes that the Medicare physician reimbursement formula will remain in place in its current form. If Congress acts to freeze or increase Medicare rates, overall Medicare spending will increase and impact the long-term solvency estimates of the program. Reforming Medicare is certain to continue to receive a great deal of attention from Congress. Any changes implemented by Congress will impact the estimates outlined in the report.

Hospital Readmission Rates Decline Under Medicare

According to a report recently released by CMS, hospital readmission rates for fee-for-service Medicare beneficiaries fell in 2012. Rehospitalization within 30 days of discharge from an inpatient stay for Medicare beneficiaries fell from 19 percent in 2007 – 2011 to 18.4 percent in 2012. CMS estimates that the reduction in readmissions equated to approximately 70,000 fewer readmissions last year. It was also noted by CMS that hospitals participating in the Partnership for Patients Program were more likely to have lower readmission rates than those not participating the Program.

Washington Tidbits: Five Words...The Election of a Senator

The framers of the U.S. Constitution were challenged to draft a document that would be ratified by the colonies and weather the storms of time. In an effort to achieve these goals, compromises and policy decisions were made directly impacting the direction and operation of the Federal Government. One such compromise involved the wording of Article 1 Section 3 which provides for the election of senators.

For more than 120 years, senators from each state were chosen by the state legislatures. Overtime, however, this proved to be increasingly problematic in divided states. This resulted in vacancies that would go unfilled for extended periods of time. To address this, the 17th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified on April 8, 1913 changing “chosen by the legislature thereof” to “elected by the people thereof.” As the saying goes, “The rest is history.”

Deadline to Avoid 2014 eRx Penalty is June 30

Officials from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) have again urged doctors to act now to avoid the 2014 two percent e-prescribing penalty. If you are an individual eligible professional (EP) or participating in the Group Practice Reporting Option (GPRO), you must successfully report as an electronic prescriber before June 30, 2013 or you will experience a two percent payment reduction in 2014 for professional services covered under Medicare Part B's Physician Fee Schedule. Medicare officials are encouraging physicians to submit claims above the established minimum thresholds. The reporting requirements are as follow: individual EPs – 10 eRx events via claims; GPRO of 2-24 EPs – 75 eRx events via claims; GPRO of 25-99 EPs – 625 eRx events via claims; and GPRO of 100+ EPs – 2,500 eRx events via claims. Requests for exemptions must also be applied for by June 30, 2013. Additional information is available at www.cms.gov.

University of Vermont, and Edward Horton, Senior Investigator in the Section on Clinical, Behavioral & Outcomes Research at the Joslin Diabetes Center and Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School, will provide keynotes for the meeting.

Dr. Leahy's animal research on beta cell mass and function, and the role of various agents in beta cell preservation, particularly GLP-1 and the PPARs, has been a driving force in the development of new targets to support glucose metabolism and the testing of new generations of agents. He will share insights into this work and some recent clinical trials in which he is currently engaged on Thursday, October 10.

The story will continue on Friday when Dr. Horton summarizes the genesis and impact of such pivotal studies as the Diabetes Prevention Program (he is the primary investigator), which investigates the comparative efficacy of various agents in reducing impaired glucose tolerance, and the Look AHEAD study, which is examining various interventions to reduce CVD in patients with T2DM.

These two important scientists and excellent speakers will offer a view of the future of diabetes management. They are illustrative of the Convention program theme of how bench research translates to the bedside.

The 2013 Convention and Scientific Sessions will take place at the beautiful Renaissance Esmeralda Resort and Spa in Indian Wells, CA. Martin C. Burke, DO, FACOI, is the program chair. The program will feature late-breaking information in internal medicine and all of the subspecialties. Registration materials will be available at www.acoi.org this month.

Two Additional Opportunities For Hospice and Palliative Medicine Certification Planned

The AOA Bureau of Osteopathic Specialists (BOS) has approved a proposal that will provide two additional examination opportunities for candidates who may have experience, but not dedicated fellowship training, in Hospice and Palliative Medicine. This pathway to certification of added qualifications (CAQ) in hospice and palliative medicine was scheduled to end in 2013.

The determination of the BOS is as follows:

- The clinical practice pathway will close as scheduled on December 31, 2013.
- The Conjoint CAQ Examination Committee in Hospice and Palliative Medicine is charged with offering a minimum of two (2) examination opportunities in 2014.
- Applications for the CAQ examination must be made available on the appropriate websites and through the boards through December 31, 2013.
- Any applications received by a conjoint member specialty certifying board by midnight, December 31, 2013 (including the AOBIM), are to be processed as if the candidate applied during the clinical practice pathway.
- Candidates who have applied through the clinical practice pathway must complete the examination no later than December 31, 2014 (or the last examination offered in 2014), or forfeit their eligibility under the clinical practice pathway and forfeit all fees submitted.

Board of Directors Nominations

Active members of the ACOI who are interested in serving on the Board of Directors are invited to call the College's office and request a nominating packet. The members of the ACOI will elect three individuals to three-year terms on the Board at the Annual Meeting of Members, October 13 in Indian Wells, CA.

As part of an ongoing self-assessment process, the Board has developed a position description for Board members and a list of competencies that should be possessed by the Board as a whole. Potential candidates must complete an application form that allows them to describe how their experience and expertise match up with the desired competencies.

In order to be considered by the Nominating Committee, the completed nomination packet must be returned to the ACOI office no later than June 15, 2013. The slate of candidates will be announced in the July issue of the newsletter.
