

CORPORATE PARTNERSHIP COUNCIL

Fostering meaningful, forward-thinking partnerships that enhance clinical excellence, support physician education, and drive innovation

About Us

The American College of Osteopathic Internists (ACOI) serves more than 14,000 internal medicine physicians, residents and students. As the second largest osteopathic specialty society, our members represent general internal medicine physicians and medical subspecialties in cardiology, nephrology, gastroenterology, pulmonary/critical care, oncology, and others.

Our Mission

As the premier community for osteopathic internists, ACOI provides leadership, networking, and education to help our members be successful and stay true to why they pursued medicine.

About DOs

Doctors of Osteopathic Medicine practice in every medical field and specialty available today, combining their expertise with a whole-person approach centered on listening to and partnering with their patients.

DOs make up one of the fastest-growing segments of the health care profession. Currently, there are over 200,000 osteopathic physicians and medical students in the United States with 55% practicing in primary care specialties.*
